Editor: Mike Nicholson

Hey DuKane,

How's it goin'? As you may recall last month I mentioned a less than pleasant odor in the air where I was. Now, it's not roses yet, but , there is way less eau de cess-pool.

So what changed? Overall restrictions are being loosened. Just yesterday, June 13, we had a burger at a restaurant, Lodi in Maple Park if you want to check them out.. With others present at other tables. We were outside, of course. But considering the weather we more than likely would have chosen to eat on the patio anyway. Oh, I almost forgot to mention we were in Illinois this time. We had planned to eat elsewhere but found that location, a very small breakfast and lunch place in Garden Prairie, was set up for takeout but only had 1 outdoor table that was already in use. The thing is you may need to check out where you want to go before you leave to make sure how they are currently handling things. Check again and you may be pleasantly surprised.

Today, the 14th, Flag Day, we met up with others and went for a ride. We again ended up in Illinois and found once again we were able sit and eat. The big difference was we shared tables. People got up, walked about and talked. It was all so normal. Thank you Hoops in Hebron.

Adding it up we rode about 375 miles over the 2 days. Not all that much, but we got out. We rode and had fun. We were not the only ones out there. We saw single riders, couples, small groups and one as large as ours on Sunday with both just shy of 20 bikes.

The point, as before, is as long as you follow the rules you can still get out, ride and enjoy life. And even better if you ride a bit farther you may just find the rules are very relaxed. That being said, for now keep a mask handy. Some places are still more restricted. Check out those favorite places. Give them a call and see if you can go and enjoy them. Even if they say, sorry not yet, they will appreciate knowing people still remember them and want to visit, But, remember to come back home.

See you along the road.

Mike Nicholson
